JULY FOURTH CELEBRATION STARTS AT 8 A. M. TODAY

Flag Raising At Consulate First On Program

OTHER AFFAIRS

Columbia Country Club's Dance Brilliant Function

Americans in Shanghai, together with their fellow Americans in the homeland and wherever they may be scattered around the globe, will celebrate 'The Glorious Fourth' today.

All preparations for one of the most successful celebrations in the annals of Shanghai have been completed by the committee in charge, headed by United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham, as well as by the special committees representing various American organisations which will hold celebrations of their own.

The official program will be as follows:

8 a.m.—Flag Raising at the American Consulate-General.

11.30 a.m.—Reception at the American Consulate General.

3 p.m.—Baseball Game at the Recreation Ground Race Club, Shanghai versus Navy, for the Cup championship.

5 p.m.—American Community Lawn Party, Recreation Grounds, Race Club.

At the flag raising ceremony there will also be an announcement of the prize winners in the essay contest inaugurated by Consul-General Cunningham for American school children here. The Consul-General offered two cash prizes to American students, of whatever school, for the best essays written on one of the following subjects "(1)—"The American Flag in China before 1870," "America in Old China," "America and the Building of Shanghai," (2) "America and the Future China," "The Place of American Ideals and Institutions in China," "What is a Good American in China?"

ESSAY CONTEST

There has been a very gratifying response to the contest offer and Mr. Cunningham hopes to make it an annual affair. The winning essays will be read at the flag-raising.

There will also be an address delivered at the flag raising ceremony by Lieutenant Commander A. Loder, U. S. N. on "The Use of the Flag," and small American flags will be distributed to all the children attending by Mrs. Cunningham.

All Americans and their friends are invited to attend the official reception to be held at the Consulate-General beginning at 11:30. No personal invitations are being issued. It is expected that there will be a record attendance this year and special preparations are being made to take care of the crowd.

A special matshed has been erected on the grounds between the Consulate-General and the U.S. Court, which has been suitably decorated for the occasion, and the gigantic flagpole on the Consulate grounds has been electrically decorated through the courtesy of Anderson, Meyer and Company and will be lighted tonight.

DANCE LAST NIGHT

The celebration of the day actually started last night when the annual Fourth of July dance was held at the Columbia Country Club and attended by an exceptionally large number of the American community and their friends.

Squadron-Leader Maclaren, the British aviator who landed in Shanghai yesterday on his flight from England around the world, together with his companions, the British Consul-General, and the Committee which welcomed him to Shanghai composed of former flying officers in the Royal Flying Corps, were the guests of the Club committee at the affair.

There will be no reception at the American Club on Nanking Road today, as there has been in past years, but the usual reception for members of the Columbia Country Club and their friends will be held from 5 until 8 o'clock this afternoon.

BALL GAME AT 3 P.M.

The ball game, starting at 3 p.m., is expected to be a strenuous tussle this year, with the Navy

New York, July 2.—The first Trans-continental air mail has arrived from San Francisco.

JUDGE PURDY TO GO NORTH ON SATURDAY

No Decisions Expected In Local Cases Until August

Judge Milton D. Purdy and the staff of the United States Court for China will leave on the s.s. Fengtien on Saturday for Tientsin where a session of the court will be held. It is expected that the court will sit in Tientsin for two weeks and then go to Harbin for a week as there are also a number of cases to be heard there. After the Harbin session Judge Purdy expects to go to Peking for his first visit to the capital.

Judge Purdy will be accompanied by Acting District Attorney H. D. Rodger, U. S. Marshal Thurston R. Porter, and Court Reporter R. Peyton Griffen. Mrs. Rodger is also accompanying Mr. Rodger and will visit in Peking while the court is sitting in the North.

Because of the pressure of court work in the North it is considered doubtful that Judge Purdy will be able to hand down decisions in the three cases still unsettled before the court—the Lafuente, Husar v. Pacific Mail, and Webb cases, until he returns to Shanghai. The Judge was working on them, however, yesterday and there is a possibility that one decision may be handed down within the week.

The court staff will not return to Shanghai until August.

Hungarian Loan Issued In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 2.—The London portion of the big loan to assist the rehabilitation of Hungary, amounting to £7,902,000 in 7½ percent sterling bonds at 88, redeemable between 1924 and 1944, was issued today. The lists closed at 11.30 this morning. This is about 70 percent of the loan, the balance of which has been divided between various other countries.

The New York portion is $7,500,000, which was issued simultaneously with the London portion.

Riffs In Morroco Take Offensive

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 2.—An official communique announces that the Riffs have taken the offensive in the Spanish Zone of Morocco, in conjuction with Raisuli's supporters. The Spanish have succeeded in relieving Tazza, which was besieged by the insurgents. The Spanish losses include 30 killed. The situation in the Tetuan district is precarious.

Russo-Chinese Conference To Open July 14

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, July 2.—It is expected that Russian delegates, who are to attend the forthcoming formal Russo-Chinese conference, will arrive here by the 9th instant. In the meantime, the Chinese Government has decided to appoint as its delegates to the said conference Mr. Yen Teh-ching of the Ministry of Communications, Mr. Cheng Shi-keng of the Ministry of Finance, and General Chang Kuo-jen of the General Headquarters besides the nine officials of the Waichiaopu, who were already appointed a few days ago. It has been unofficially decided that the formal Russo-Chinese conference will be opened on the 14th instant.

British Machine Lands Safely In The Whangpoo Off Black Point Buoys

MacLaren's Journey Half Completed—Sergeant Andrews In Hospital With Suntroke—Leave For Japan On Saturday

The big Vickers amphibian in which Squadron-Leader A. Stuart Maclaren and two companions are making a flight around the world, landed in the Whangpoo near Black Point yesterday morning at 11:20 o'clock and taxied in the river to the mooring buoy where they were greeted by British Consul-General Barton and a good sized crowd of well-wishers.

The British machine—the third airplane engaged in making aerial history which has landed here within the month—was sighted about 11:15 o'clock and its coming was announced by the blowing of many sirens on ships in the river. At the same time a launch with the welcoming party belched forth a dense cloud of black smoke in order to tell Squadron-Leader Maclaren the direction of the wind, and a few minutes later the big machine, which swooped down into the water one-quarter of a mile from where the welcoming party's launch was moored, taxied to the launch.

Squadron-Leader Maclaren and his companions, Flight Officer Plenderlieth, the pilot, and Sergeant Andrews, the mechanic, were taken by launch to the Scot I where they were greeted by Mr. Barton, a delegation of former Royal Flying Corps officers, and prominent British residents. Mr. S. Yada, the Japanese Consul-General was also among those present.

Sergeant Andrews was taken to the General Hospital suffering from a sun stroke as soon as possible. It was said last night that although he had a high fever his condition was not serious. It is not known whether he will be in condition to accompany the flight on to Japan or not, but it is hoped that he will be able to 'carry on.'

Squadron-Leader Maclaren and Flight Officer Plenderlieth, after being introduced to the crowd assembled to greet them, and having their photos taken by moving picture men as well as a score or more photographers, were given light refreshment on board the Scott I and then brought to the Customs' jetty at 12:30 o'clock, where an even larger crowd had assembled to cheer the plucky flyers. They were then taken to the residence of the British Consul-General where they will stay while in Shanghai.

Last night they, with Mr. Barton and the welcoming committee, were the guests of the Committee of the Columbia Country Club at the Fourth of July dance at the club. They were warmly greeted by the large crowd of Americans assembled to begin the celebration of the 'Glorious Fourth.'

At tiffin today they will be entertained at the Shanghai Club. Reservations were limited to 200 and it was said last night that many were disappointed in not getting seats the demand was so great. No other arrangements have been made definitely as yet but it understood that several other functions will be given for them during their stay here.

The big amphibian is expected to hop off for Kagoshima, Japan, sometime on Saturday, the definite time to be announced today.

Misfortune seems to have dogged the airmen right from the first. A forced landing at Havre, owing to fog, was the beginning of a chapter of accidents, which terminated in the utter wreck of the machine at Akyab. A new machine was rushed down to Hongkong on an American destroyer and trans-shipped from there to Akyab. Since then little time has been wasted.

Having reached Shanghai the airmen can now consider half

MOVIES TO SHOW TRAFFIC PERILS OF S'HAI STREETS

"Safety First" Film Of B. A. T. Comes To Carlton Next Week

If realism on the screen can teach new tricks to the average person, "Safety First," a new motion picture produced by the motion picture department of the British-American Tobacco Company as part of its S. M. C. Traffic Series, should go a long way toward cutting down traffic accidents in Shanghai and elsewhere in China.

The film, which is in two reels, was displayed privately at the Carlton Theater yesterday afternoon to a group of invited guests of the company. It will have its first public showing at the Carlton Theater next week.

The lesson is conveyed in story form. Wong Chia-ling, so the story goes, is the adored only son of a venerable, wealthy Chinese who resides in one of the outports. The youth, approaching maturity, is to be sent to Nanyang college in Shanghai. The opening of the picture depicts his farewell at the family home, and the admonitions of his father to be very careful when going about the streets of Shanghai because of the heavy traffic in the big city.

So Wong departs, and in due course of time arrives at Shanghai North Station. His carelessness with regard to traffic manifests itself at once. While waiting for a cousin to meet him, Wong ambles about on the adjacent streets, is hit by a heavily loaded wheelbarrow, and he the coolie and the wheelbarrow go down in a heap. No serious casualities except for the coolie's derby hat.

Eventually, Wong is picked up by his cousin and Forded to Nanyang College. But the lure of Shanghai draws Wong from his studies, and his next adventure is a ricsha accident. A few bruises this time, and the ricsha coolie is unjustly arrested, all of which is later straightened out by Wong.

The finale comes with a tram car ride, in the course of which Wong and his cousin studiously observe the "Safety First" signs in the tram. Wong, however, thinks he knows better, tries to jump from the tram while it is still moving, and is dragged under the wheels and very seriously injured.

Later scenes depict Wong in the hospital, his life hanging by a thread. Delirium visits him, and there come terrifying visions of traffic accidents caused by carelessness. Wong may or may not recover. We are left in doubt at the end.

The play is well acted by Chinese members of the staff of the British-American Tobacco Company, and though purposely overdrawn, the story should create a considerable impression, particularly on the Chinese mind.

SUNDAY PICTORIAL

It may not, perhaps, be generally known that the Fascist movement is making definite headway in Canton and in the province of Kwangtung generally. All eyes are now centered on the figure of a remarkable multi-millionaire who is beginning to be called the Mussolini of Canton. We have received an exclusive photograph of this man, who is perhaps destined to play a historic role in the affairs of South China—a part which may overshadow that of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. This photograph, as well as a remarkable group picture of the Merchant Volunteer Protective Association, will be reproduced in next Sunday's issue of THE CHINA PRESS Sunday Pictorial.

PEDICAB SERVICE WILL BE STARTED HERE TOMORROW

New Vehicles Ready To Go Into Use, Is Announcement

Shanghai, starting tomorrow, will have a regularly organised "pedicab" service, according to announcement made yesterday by the Shanghai Pedicab Service Company, which has had its service in process of organisation for some months past.

For those in doubt as to just what a pedicab is, it should be explained that the vehicle in question is a new adaptation of an old means of communication—the tricycle. The vehicle is so arranged that it has a seat in front for the driver, and in the rear, suspended over the axle connecting the two rear wheels, is a cab designed to carry one passenger. The driver, sitting in front, pedals away steadily, or as steadily as other traffic will permit, and the passenger has nothing to do but to sit back and be comfortable. The "pedicab," the promoters of the new company say, has many advantages over the ricsha, and it is their hope that in time it is destined to replace the ricsha in Shanghai.

A fare schedule, authorised by the Municipal Council, is announced as follows:

For one mile or part of a mile, 10 cents silver.

For every half-mile beyond the first one, 10 cents silver.

For the first hour or part of it, 50 cents silver.

For every following hour or part thereof, 40 cents silver.

If hired by the month, $35.00.

Messrs. H. H. Rutherford and A. J. Mathews are directors of the company, and Mr. A. A. Chaillet, secretary. Offices are maintained at 12 Nanking Road, and a garage and works at 62 Connaught Road.

Trials of the new vehicles have been conducted here within the past few days.

NORMAN BOWLER AGAIN ARRESTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Young Man Acquitted Last March To Reappear In Court

Norman W. Bowler, termed "an extravagant young ass" by British Police Magistrate C. W. King last March when charges of obtaining goods and credit by false pretenses were dismissed, was again arrested by the Municipal police yesterday and faces a new batch of charges of similar nature.

Bowler was arrested on a British Court warrant charging him with securing a camera, case and films valued at $69.60 from Messrs. Watson and Co. by means of false pretenses. A similar charge is being preferred by the Young Photo Co., while the Shanghai Horse Bazaar and Motor Co. charges him with fraudulently obtaining a motor car valued Tls. 1,800 on June 28, Messrs. J. Ullman and Co. charge the securing of a silver cigarette case valued at $60, Squires and Bingham have a claim for a pair of shoes and the Savoy Hotel one for board and lodging.

It is alleged that Bowler used the name of the Far Eastern Review in securing the goods, signing chits. A large part of the property has been recovered from pawn by Detective Sergeant Tinkler, Bowler will appear in the British Police Court today.

The young man—he gave his age as 23—faced five charges of securing credit and goods by means of false pretenses last March. Two motor cars were listed at that time. In the previous case Bowler gave post-dated checks and it was held by the Court that intent to defraud was not proven. It is understood that there are further, civil, claims against him at present.

McADOO GETS BIG VOTE LEAD, BUT IS STILL LONG WAY FROM NOMINATION

"Oil!" Cries Again Raised As Bryan Comes Out For Former Treasury Chief; Vice-Presidential Fight Also Waxes Hot

(BY UNITED PRESS)

New York, July 3.—Although William Gibbs McAdoo took a tremendous lead in the late ballots the Democratic Convention adjourned tonight after the forty-second ballot without choosing a nominee.

McAdoo's spurt, which brought his vote close to 500, the highest it has ever been, came after William Jennings Bryan, America's silver-tongued orator, who once secured the nomination for himself by his "cross of gold and crown of thorns" speech, had made a magnificent plea to the delegates to end the deadlock existing by nominating McAdoo, whom he characterised as a fine progressive Democrat.

Bryan's speech was received with mingled cheers, hisses and catcalls, but it served in swinging some of the delegates who are admirers of 'The Commoner' into the McAdoo column and began a trickle of votes that might lead in the son-in-law of the late Woodrow Wilson securing the nomination.

Today's ballots also brought the religious issue into the foreground when some of the leaders advocated nominating a Catholic for vice-president if a Protestant were nominated for President. There suggestion was said to have emanated from the camp of Governor Al Smith of New York, a Catholic, who is believed to be getting ready to give up the fight for the nomination although he is running second to McAdoo. It is said that it is possible that some compromise may be arrived at between the Klu Klux Klan forces, who are said to support McAdoo, and the anti-Klan forces, who are supporting Smith, if such an agreement is arrived at.

In the heat of the presidential nomination fight there is also in progress now a bitter struggle for prospective votes between the leading contenders for the nomination for vice-president. Among those most mentioned for second place on the ticket are Senator Walsh of Montana, a Catholic, who conducted the oil investigation; Senator Royal Copeland of New York; Governor Charles Bryan of Nebraska, brother of William Jennings Bryan, and A. T. [illegible], member of Woodrow Wilson's Cabinet.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 3.—At the 29th ballot at the Democratic Convention Mr. McAdoo gained 55 votes and Mr. Davis lost 35. The Convention adjourned after the 42nd ballot, which showed no further change.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 2.—After four more inconclusive ballots, Mr. W. J. Bryan spoke, declaring himself for Mr. McAdoo. He named many other Democrats, who in his opinion could fill the Presidency with credit, including his brother, Mr. Charles Bryan, Senator Ralston of Indiana and Senator Walsh of Montana. He urged that this was no time for the nomination of a reactionary. The Republicans would get most of the Conservative votes. Mr. McAdoo fulfilled the requirement of being progressive.

There was great disorder by the Smith supporters' gallery, but the McAdoo adherents applauded rapturously.

One of the delegates asked about Mr. McAdoo representing Mr. Doheny as counsel. "If any oil ever touched McAdoo," said Mr. Bryan, "the intense and persistent opposition of Wall Street has washed it all away."

Mr. McAdoo gained ten votes in the next ballot and the hall resounded with roars of "Oil! oil!" by the McAdoo adherents, amid which the session adjourned until the evening.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 2.—The 31st ballot at the opening of the Democratic Convention this morning was divided between 13 candidates.

There was enormous rejoicing in the McAdoo camp when in the 33rd ballot the Mississippi delegation was induced to transfer its 20 votes from Ex-Ambassador Davis to the McAdoo column, where they agreed to stay for five ballots in order to give the McAdoo men a chance to show what they could do.

FURTHER WORD RECEIVED HERE OF BYERS DEATH

Missioner And Family Alone At Kachek At Time Of Slaying

The Rev. George D. Byers, slain by bandits at Kachek, Hainan Island, was alone at the mission station with Mrs. Byers and their four children when he was shot, according to further word received by the American Presbyterian Mission (North) offices here.

Word of Mr. Byer's death was received in Hoihow at 11 p.m. Tuesday, June 24, when a Chinese letter was brought to Dr. H. M. McCandliss from the Military official. The letter was a copy of a telephone message sent from Kachek at 9 p.m. by the military officer there. The message was addressed to the Hoihow Hospital and, roughly translated, read as follows:

"Four ruffians entered the compound to bind and carry off Mr. Byers. He refused to go and was shot in the abdomen and killed. Inform others. Please come at once to Kachek to make arrangements for burial."

The British Consul at Hoihow was immediately notified, as were also the local Chinese officials. Mr. Tappan and Mr. Stenner, together with a Chinese elder of Kachek started next morning at daybreak, accompanied by an escort of six soldiers, expecting to reach Kachek on the evening of the next day.

The British Consul got into telephone communication with Mrs. Byers through the Chinese yamen and learned that she and the children were well and had a Chinese guard, thus considerably relieving the anxiety felt concerning Mrs. Byers.

Commons Awaits British Officer's Hawley Report

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 2.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. G. Lansbury, Labor member for Bow and Bromley, asked by whose authority the Commander of the Cockchafer had acted in connection with the Wansien incident. He also asked if the two men concerned in the murder of Mr. Hawley had been court-martialled or otherwise tried, and also the time that elapsed between the murder and the executions.

Mr. Frank Hodges, Civil Lord of the Admiralty, replied that the Cockchafer was the only war vessel present and that the commandink officer took the action which he considered necessary. A full written report by the British Commander-in-Chief was awaited.

Mr. Hodges added, amid Opposition cheers, that the American Commander-in-Chief had thanked the British Commander for the action taken by the Commander of the Cockchafter which, according to the incomplete report received, had materially assisted in saving life.

their journey completed. The route taken has been: Calshot, Havre, Lyons, Rome, Brindisi, Corfu, Athens, Cairo, Ziza, Baghdad, Basra, Bushire, Bandar Abbas, Karachi, Nasirabad, Calcutta, Akyab, Rangoon, Bangkok, Haiphong, Hongkong, Foochow and Shanghai.

Squadron-Leader A. Stuart MacLaren is an Oxford man. At the outbreak of war he joined the Royal Flying Corps as a mechanic. He was taught to fly in France, and in 1915 went to Egypt. He won the M. C. the next year.

Afterwards, Squadron-Leader MacLaren gained a bar to his Cross and subsequently won the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Force Cross.

Squadron-Leader MacLaren was in charge of the Aden flight, and in 1921 and 1922 he was highly commended by the authorities at Home for the way he and his little band of pilots kept the native tribes of the hinterland in order.

Squadron-Leader MacLaren is 32 years of age. His two comrades, like himself are Scotsmen.

Flying Officer Plenderleith, the pilot of the expedition, is 25 years of age. He joined the R.F.C. during the war and saw a great deal of active service in France, being badly wounded in a fight with a superior number of machines. Later, he was attached to the defence of London, in which capacity he carried out night flying.

In 1921 Flying Officer Plenderleith was sent on the Aden flight, in connection with which he was mentioned in despatches. It was on this duty that Flight Officer Plenderleith came in contact with Squadron-Leader MacLaren, and the two men learned to appreciate each others qualities.

The third member of the crew, Sergeant Andrews, hails from Worksop. He also is a young man, being only 24, and he, too, has seen service in France during the war. His special care is the engine and the machine.

THE MACHINE

The machine used for the flight is a Vickers Vulture, the latest development of the Viking amphibian. Messrs. Vickers have built two machines specially for Squadron-Leader MacLaren's requirements. The first to be completed was used for practice flights. The second machine, on which the flight was begun embodied all the alterations which the airmen found necessary from tests of the first.

The first machine was sent to Tokio and then on to Vancouver. Both machines are identical so far as type is concerned. They are amphibians, able to land either on land or water. Each has an overall length of 38ft. 2in., with a wing span of 49ft. and an overall height of 14ft. 6 in. Each has two large main petrol tanks and a service tank, giving a total capacity of 317 gallons, which will ensure a range of approximately 16 hours' flying. An auxiliary oil tank, a drinking-water tank, which can be lifted out and used for cooling purposes if necessary, and special camera and navigation gear have also been fitted to meet Squadron-Leader MacLaren's requirements. Each machine has a speed of from 85 to 90 miles an hour with a normal load. The additional 77-gallon petrol tank, fitted in Canada, will give the machine a total range of 1 600 miles, more than sufficient for the flight from St. John's, Newfoundland, to the Azores.

Four "Lion" engines, three low compression and one high compression, were specially provided for the flight by Messrs. Naper. The first low compression engine has been put into the second machine. The second low compression engine was sent to Tokio. This engine has 12 cylinders in three blocks of four cylinders, each fanshaped. This novel design gives the engine a short length and reduces the vibration in running to a minimum. The engine weighs less than 2lb. for every unit of horse-power. The high compression engine has been sent to Vickers' Canadian Works at Montreal, to be put into the machine for the Atlantic crossing. The low compression engines give 450 h.p. each, and the high compression engine gives approximately 550 h.p.

Petrol for the flight has been supplied by the Asiatic Petroleum Company, and stocks have been dumped at every port of call round the world. This Company too, is supplying oil of its own special brand, which has been thoroughly tested by the engine manufacturers.

The largest part in the program will be taken by Shanghai American children, who have been drilling under the supervision of Mrs. Gardner Crane for some time past in a series of tableaux which are sure to be of much interest. Incidents in past and contemporary American history are to be pictured in colorful and piquant style.

All American vessels of war which are in port will be open to visitors today from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Though it is not intended to hold a reception, any Americans and their friends who desire to visit the ships will be more than welcome.

DAIRYMAN FINED $100 FOR FRAUD IN USE OF NAME

A fine of $100, with the alternative of three months' imprisonment, was ordered by Assessor Bucknell and Magistrate Li of the Mixed Court yesterday in the case of a Chinese dairyman charged with supplying inferior milk to patrons in the Settlement and pretending that it came from the American Dairy.

The case was prosecuted by Mr. M. L. Hecn and Mr. C. F. Langley, manager of the American Dairy was the chief witness. The latter stated that the accused had previously worked for the dairy but when arrested was working for the Gaikai Road dairy. Witness also received a letter from a foreigner living in Soochow Road who complained of the quality of the milk he was receiving and cancelled his orders. The man was not on the American Dairy's books at all and investigation revealed that the milk was being supplied by the accused and that certain old debit forms of the company were being used. The customer had written that he had been getting milk, supposedly from the American Dairy, for six months.

When the accused, Sung Ah-ying, was questioned he stated that he had taken the old debit slips from the waste paper basket.

Washington Not Alarmed Over Flag Incident

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Washington, July 3.—The State Department is convinced that the so-called flag incident at Tokio, when a Japanese cut down the American flag in the old Embassy compound, was caused by an irresponsible individual and considers the incident closed now that the flag has been recovered and the Japanese Government has expressed its feelings in the matter.

Comparison

It is obvious that where claims are made, comparison is inevitable. Comparison of the NEW Columbia Grafonola with ordinary gramophones has given it a place in music that no other gramophone has attained in so short a space of time. Comparison of the "NEW PROCESS" Records (without Scratch) with ordinary records reveals all the deficiencies of the latter.

To hear either one is to enjoy but one-half of a great achievement. To hear them in combination is to experience the sensation of a new experience. But to hear them in comparison with ordinary gramophones is to understand the enthusiasm of master musicians and music-lovers alike.

The Belgrade papers report a strange story of a peasant girl in the village of Buckovtche possessed of some strange power of radiation so that no clothes will remain on her. The village reports that when she has dressed her clothes turn after a few hours first into something resembling spider's web and then literally into thin air. Naturally such an inconvenient person has disturbed the villages, though probably less from consideration for the maintenance of standards of propriety than from superstitious fears that she is possessed of diabolic powers. The chief of police of the district has sent for the girl, who is to be examined before the more enlightened eyes of the district police and a committee of doctors.

Harry Kingman Loses Ball Game, Then Wins It, Then Loses It Again

First Sacker Has Hectic Day On Diamond, Making The First Bean Error Of His Long Career; Japanese Win By One Amid Great Excitement

By Westa

One hectic afternoon in Chicago the American leaguers were playing the New York Yankees and Big Ed Walsh was pitching for the Stockyards outfit. It was an important game and Big Ed had a one run lead in the ninth with two out but with Yanks on third and second. Suddenly he cut loose with one that roared six feet over his catcher's head—something he had never done before in all the years that he was the White Sox stand-by. Both runners scored, and as the thirty thousand sat there, stunned and silent, a big voice boomed out of the bleachers: "Eddie, I want to see you in my office after this game!"

Well, that's the way the customers at the ball park yesterday, felt about Harry Kingman, except that most of them figured that instead of having Harry in their office they would have preferred to have him in the woodshed, where they could have introduced him to the business end of a razor strop, or even a barrel stave.

And when you reflect on how extremely difficult it is to feel that way about good old reliable Harry you will begin to understand the seriousness of his lapse from the usual good behaviour that characterises his ball tossing activities.

HARRY SLIPS TWICE

Harry was guilty of two errors yesterday, but the one that all this wail is about was made with his head. The other one was made with his hands, which was excusable, seeing that it was the first of the kind that has been chalked against him in the three years that he has played ball here.

The other one—the one that made us feel that we would like to give Harry a proper tantaning—came about in the third session. Nakazawa, first man up, walked and was immediately sacrificed by Masuda. Then Sakamoto busted one and went to second on the throw in, the shortstop being held at third. Bullard tossed out Kishi, and then came the play that made Harry look like he had been endowed with a head for the sole purpose of hanging a hat on. Iwata dumped one down the first base line which Harry ran in and scooped, and as the two runners tore in, and as Mal stood on the bag waiting for the toss for the third out, what did our friend Harry do?

All he did was to just stand there and hold the ball! Just that and nothing more!

The two runs, of course, counted, and Iwata was high and dry on first. Aboshi, next man up, clouted one clear over Claire's head in centerfield for three bases, scoring Iwata, giving the Japanese three runs for about the price of a sparrow's tiffin, which is pretty cheap.

HARRY RETRIEVES

Harry felt pretty bad about that one, and by way of atoning for it he stepped up in the next inning and busted one clear over the Japanese centerfielder's head for two bases, and as there were two on at the time Harry found himself back in the good graces of all the customers, and then some, seeing that this pair of markers put the Gallopers on even terms with the opposition. A minute later when Mal slammed one that brought Buck Taylor—running for Harry—home with the run that put us ahead in a game that had started out like a walkover for the visitors, Harry was more than forgiven.

The one run lead held good until the eighth, when with two down a low throw from Jerry Thatch got away from Harry, giving Aboshi a life and sending Iwata to third, from where he scored when Harry's return heave to the Captain bounded away a few feet. The Japanese catcher then busted one, scoring Aboshi with what proved to be the winning run.

It was unfortunate that Harry dropped that throw, although not in the least surprising, seeing that before he dropped it he first had to dig it out of the dirt, Jerry's peg being both low and wide. Nobody blamed Harry for that, although naturally it caused the minds of the customers to revert to his other slip, which by that time they had forgotten.

So you see it was what you might call an up and down day for Harry. First he loses the game, then he wins it, and then he loses it again.

EXCITING GAME

It certainly was a wonky ball game, fuller of action and excitement than a fox is of schemes. The Japanese started out by hitting Claire, our pitching ace, rather freely, although the runs that trickled in were due more to leaks in his support than to any shortcomings on his part. Verne felt that he wasn't quite "right," however, and asked to be transferred to the outfield. That brought Jawn Scott up for mound duty and Jawn performed nobly. He had the Manshus breaking their backs swinging at his curves, and would have won his game except for the unfortunate slips of his mates.

It was a great day for the customers. When the Japanese got their two run start the Banzais were loud and numerous, but when Kingman and Maloney busted those two hits that put the locals ahead the noise was all out of other throats. When the railroaders forged ahead again in the eighth you would have thought Bedlam was loose. After the game the Japanese players were nearly mobbed by their frenzied partisans.

It was a great ball game from the standpoint of the fans, but not a very good one from the standpoint of Herby Gallop's pants. Herby slid back and forth on the bench while all the excitement was going on and would have worn his uniform completely out had he not had a set of sliding pads draped around his ample middle. The other boys wear sliders for base-running purposes, but Herby finds they are great to worry in.

BOXING PROGRAM MILD; HILL GETS WIN OVER VOLAIRE

Johnny Complained Of Not Feeling Well; Other Bouts Lack Action

BY WESTA

The little brown brothers who climbed into the ring at Louie's slapatorium last night were full of fight—and they were just as full as ever when they climbed out. The customers were hoping that those birds, being fighters by profession, would get in a few licks at their trade, but there was nothing doing. It was reminiscent of the music teacher who, after trying vainly for half an hour to induce her pupils to sing, barked at them, "You dummies must have a lot of music in you, for you certainly are not letting any of it out."

The main event, with Johnny Hill and Young Volaire as principals, didn't amount to much. Johnny complained in the early rounds that he had injured his left hand. He may have injured his hand, but he certainly didn't injure Volaire very much. About all they did was to maul and haul and push each other around the ring. Johnny got the decision.

Hill appeared to be sick. He told Referee Knute Hansen at the end of the first round that he wasn't feeling well, and at the end of the fourth round he told some of the ringsiders that he had broken his hand. If he had told anybody at the end of the twelfth round that he had become suddenly paralysed there wouldn't have been any disposition to doubt the truth of his statement, for he certainly didn't look like the Hill of two weeks ago, when he fought Garcia. He was a tough egg that night.

The semi-final was an eight round go between Eddie Smith and Young Gonzalo. This wasn't much either. Eddie had an advantage in both reach and weight, but appeared reluctant to trade wallops with the Filipino. Both boys spent most of their time fiddling around, feinting and sidestepping. This ended in a draw.

The main prelim was in the hands of Kid Pepe and Yokorama, a Japanese scrapper. These lads were willing enough, but neither inflicted much damage. It was called a draw, too.

Ching Ching, a Chinese, and Kid Rib pried the party open. They mauled each other around without doing any damage. Another draw.

Pretty tame, all of it. Good thing Kid Breeze was on the job, for otherwise it would have been a rather dull evening.

Filipe Flores and Young Domingo, the latter a flyweight who has been touring Australia, gave exhibitions of rope skipping that were very good, particularly Domingo's. Put a skipping rope in this boy's hands and he becomes a human top.

BASEBALL TODAY!

LORD DERBY WINS DERBY FOR FIRST TIME

SANSOVINO, WESTON UP

The Derby—the world's greatest race—was founded in 1787. One hundred and thirty-seven years ago Lord Derby, great-great-grandfather of the present Lord Derby, won it. In that 137 years the Stanley family—the Lords Derby—have been striving to enter the horse that could win the race. It remained for San Sovino, shown here with his winning jockey, Weston, up, to win the race before 750,000 cheering persons on Epsom Downs. Lord Derby himself had failed 31 times before to win the coveted race.

Tolley, British Amateur Golfer, Wins French Open

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 2.—The French Open Gold Championship, played on the Laibourlie course, for the first time in its 17 years' history was won by an amateur British competitor, Cyril Tolley, who made an aggregate score over the 72 holes of 290.

Hagen (America) was second with 293, and Duncan was twelfth with 305. The American, Sarazen, scored 307. Ockenden, the holder, did not compete.

Tolley was very steady throughout. His respective scores for the four rounds were 73, 73, 71 and 73. In the third he beat the Amateur record for the course held by the American, Chick Evans, by a stroke. Hagen's scores were 75, 72, 77 and 69. In the morning Sarazen headed the field with scores of 72 and 72, but today he made 88 and 75 for the third and fourth rounds.

NOTED RUSSIAN ANTHROPOLOGIST TO LECTURE HERE

Dr. Shirokogoroff, Back From Canton, Begins Course Monday

Dr. S. M. Shirokogoroff, noted Russian anthropologist, has returned from Canton, where he has been taking measurements of the Southern Chinese, and will begin his lectures in the East China Union Summer School on Monday, July 7. Registration for the school will be on Saturday, July 5, at St. John's University, where the session is to be held. Persons who wish to attend special courses are also asked to register on Saturday. Already more than 200 students, teachers, social workers and townspeople have sent word they wish to enrol.

Both of Dr. Shirokogoroff's classes will be held in the afternoon, five days a week. His course in Anthropology of China will have added to it the results of his investigations of the Southern Chinese, in addition to presenting the differences between the Northern and Eastern Chinese. His second course is an Introduction to Ethnology. After the close of the session, Dr. Shirokogoroff hopes to be able to make measurements in Central China.

Foreigners who will be in Shanghai during July will also be interested in Dr. Lewis Chase's courses in English, which will be given five afternoons a week. Six or eight plays will be read and discussed in Contemporary Drama. These will be European, American, and Oriental in setting. Those interested in poetry will most likely wish to attend his class in Poems: Standard and Contemporary. The lecturer will read aloud and discuss the poems and their authors.

Prisoners From Tientsin Barracks Retaken In Peking

The attempted escape of two prisoners and their guard from the American barracks at Tientsin last Saturday is reported in the Peking and Tientsin Times. The report states that the two prisoners, Snaw and Vogal, were working under a guard named Zehring, whom they evidently induced to decamp. They obtained a motor car and started for Peking. Notification was wired to that point, however, and when they arrived, at about 11 a.m. Sunday, they were taken into custody, they were sent back to Tientsin. Shaw, it is stated, was recently arrested as a deserter from the American army, the discovery being made in connection with an opium and arms deals case, and had been convicted previously in Shanghai.

FRANKS' SLAYERS IN COURT

FRENCH ONLY, IS EDICT FOR DEPUTIES

Paris, (By United Press).—Though I speak with the tongues of men and of patriots, and have not French, I am nothing.

That is the position of M. Charles Hueber, newly elected Communist deputy from Bas-Rhin, in Alsace. He speaks only German, and before he was elected he declared that if he went to the Palais Bourbon he would address the Chamber of Deputies in German.

His success at the polls drew attention to this statement, and some consternation was caused by the prospect of hearing the policies of France presented in German. It wouldn't be exactly right, and yet it couldn't be called wrong, until some student of French history dug up an edict of Villers-Cotterets, signed by Francois I, on August 10, 1539. This edict said:

"Dating from today the acts of the Government will be written in French; they will be signed in French; they will be argued in French."

That settles it, and Monsieur the deputy from Bas-Rhin will have to speak French or keep quiet. The ancient edict has brought much parliamentary relief, for there was a serious problem on how M. Hueber's speeches might be recorded, for the stenographers cannot take dictation in German. The press has advised the Alsace deputy to learn French, and reminds him that he has been neglectful because he declared himself a good Frenchman after the Armistice and never studied the language.

The only known precedent occured February 18, 1874 in the German Reichstag. Deputies from Alsace and Lorraine, who came to protest the annexation of their provinces to Germany, asked permission to speak in French. At that time the president of the Reichstag observed:

"The rule, interpreted soundly and according to the logic of things, permits only German to be spoken in the German Reichstag, and leaves to deputies who are ignorant of German the right to read to the tribune discourses written and translated in this language."

RETIREMENT OF LENGLEN CAUSES TONGUES TO WAG

Miss Wills To Meet Miss McKane In Tennis Final

(Reuter's Service)

Wimbledon, 2.—There were 10,000 spectators at Wimbledon today. The weather was cloudy.

The sole topic of conversation was the retirement of Mlle. Lenglen, who was a spectator. Miss McKane thereby receives a walk-over into the final. She will meet Miss Wills, who beat Mrs. Satterthwaite 6-2, 6-1 in the semifinal.

The first centre court match today was that in which Raymond and Spence defeated Colonel Kingscote and Gilbert 6-2 7-5, 6-2. The Africans were always superior.

Another British doubles defeat occurred when Richards and Hunter beat Woosnam and Wheatley, 6-2, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, while the Americans, Washburn and Williams, disposed of Kingsley and Masterman, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Mr. Covell and Miss McKane entered the semi-final by defeating Mrs. Beamish and Mrs. Hazel, 7-5, 6-1, in the fourth round.

In the fourth round of the doubles Spence and Raymond beat Norman Brookes and Fischer, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, and thus meet the Americans, Richards and Hunter, in the semi-final. Lycett and Godfreey, the holders, beat the brothers Alonso, 6-4, 6-4, 6-7, and will meet the Americans, Williams and Washburn, in the semi-final.

In the fourth round of the Mixed Doubles, Godfree and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron beat Hunter and Miss Charman, 9-7, 7-5. Woosnam and Mrs. Covell received a walk-over from Borotra and Mlle. Lenglen, who scratched. Gilbert and Miss McKane beat Williams and Mrs. Wightman, 5-7, 6-2 6-2. Lamb and Miss Harvey beat Turnbull and Mrs. Craddock, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

In the Ladies' Doubles, Mr. Wightman and Miss Wills received a walk-over from Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan, who scratched, as do the winners of the fourth. The winners enter the semi-finals, round of the Mixed Doubles.

RAIL MERGER IN AMERICA WAITS FEDERAL ACTION

Northern Pacific, Burlington And Great Northern May Be Joined

News of the projected merger of three great railways in America which will mean one general representative in Shanghai, has just been received here by Mr. A. G. Henderson general agent for the Orient of the Great Northern Railway Company, one of the roads affected.

The Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy lines await now only the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission to merge into one giant line such as was planned by James J. Hill, famous railroad magnate, years ago. When this merger which has always been Mr. Hill's dream, is consummated, the combined railways will constitute the largest railway system in the world. The combined mileage of the three roads, known as the "Hill group" is 25,000, approximately, and, if merged, they will constitute by far the largest railway system in the world.

If the merger is completed, the three railroads will be represented by one office in the Orient.

British Women's Association Notes

The following new members have joined since the last announcement: Miss M. V. Brewer; Mrs. Henri Burkhardt; Miss Joan Honess; Mrs. Arthur Morris; Miss O. B. Pavey; Mrs. A. H. Hatherly; Mrs. A. G. S. Trivett.

NEW SECRETARY

Mrs. John Snodgrass has resigned the Secretaryship of the B. W. A. and Miss Heaton-Smith has taken her place.

ORDINARY MEETING

At the ordinary meeting of members which took place at Headquarters on June the 25th the following resolution proposed by Mrs. Irwine and seconded by Mrs. Byrne, Hon. Treasurer, was unanimously carried:

That this meeting is of opinion that it would be wise to allow the scheme for a B. W. A. residential headquarters to drop for the time being.

Forms which had previously been distributed at the meeting for members to sign if they proposed to avail themselves of such a residence if established, were returned, in every case, without signature, thus proving conclusively that accommodation available in Shanghai today is more than equal of the demand for it and that there is no shortage whatever of suitable rooms for the working girls in our midst.

A KINDLY GIFT

The Association tenders its grateful thanks to the donor of the charming new hat which was sent to the office anonymously for anyone who might need it.

UNPAID SUBSCRIPTIONS

There are still more than 400 subscriptions owing to the B. W. A. for this year and quite apart from the large amount of extra work these deferred payments cause the officers, members should realise how vital a matter it is to the life of an Association that its subscriptions should be forthcoming. It is hoped that all those who have not yet paid their subscriptions will do so before departing for the summer.

Incomplete Delegations Hinder Labor Parley

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 2.—The International Labor Conference at Geneva devoted the day to examination of the reports of the commission for verification of powers, presented by M. Commene, the Rumanian Government delegate, who is president of the commission. The first report states that the number of incomplete delegations is still too great, although new States have added workers' and employers' delegates to their Government representatives. This situation disturbs the equilibrium desired by the treaties, and therefore the commission proposes to address an urgent appeal to all Governments, pointing out to them the inconvenience which results from sending incomplete delegations and begging them to apply the contract obligations assumed by them.

The Commission also proposes to entrust to the Bureau the task of making an enquiry into the situation of employers' and workers' organisations in countries which have not sent professional delegates to the Conference, with a view to discovering in what measure these countries may be likely to send incomplete delegations to the next session.

The second part of the resolution was opposed by Mr. Chi Hung-hao (China) and MM. Quezada (Chili), Barbeza (Brazil), Ferreira (Portugal), Marshal (Argentine) Deffeminis (Uruguay). The reporter proposed a revision of the text by which the Conference would request the International Labor Bureau to assemble all documents permitting of an exact appreciation of the situation of employers' and workers' associations in the various countries. Several speakers supported the new text and the report, subject to this amendment, was adopted.

The Conference then validated the mandate of M. Alte, Spanish Government delegate, M. Madot, Rumanian workers' delegate, and that of the Japanese and South African workers. Validation was pronounced after a short juridical debate on another plan for modification of the ruling, with a view to making null requests not received three days before the opening of the Conference.

On the intervention of M. Albert Thomas, it was decided to refer this text to the Council of Administration and the Rules Committee. The last contention concerns the mandate of an Italian delegate, the invalidation of which was demanded on the ground that the confederation of Fascist corporations, which he represents, constitutes a mixed organisation, not in conformity with the stipulations under Article 13.

M. Jouhaux, French workers' delegate, supported this contention and refused to admit that there was any prejudice. He said that corporations could not be considered as organisations representative of the interests of the workers.

M. Micheli (Italy) protested that it was a debateable question and said that corporations certainly formed a representative organisation. M. Rossoni, in turn, explained that corporations, which realised with a common national aim collaboration of peasants and workers, were in conformity with the principles of the International Labor Organisation.

After intervention by M. Albert Thomas, M. Jouhaux invoked the statute of corporation as a protest against what he considered a permanent violation of the rights of the workers.

British Stand On League Treaty Not Yet Decided

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 2.—Several questions were put to the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in the House of Commons today in regard to the draft treaty of convinced that the effect of such circulated by the League of Nations.

The Premier replied that the Government were not yet able to state their attitude, partly because they were still consulting the Dominions. He was in no way convinced that the effect of such a treaty would not be to increase armaments and would like to get more information on this very important point. He was, in any case convinced that this method was not the only one and doubted if it was the best method of approaching it. The Premier hoped to make a statement before the summer adjournment.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

Vionet Makes Frocks With Sash Bows at the Back That Are Part of the Printed Design of the Fabric

Perhaps the printed rag doll first suggested this fashion of making a frock with a printed bow at the back. You know those perfectly smooth little rag dolls with everything from eyelashes and curling hair to pockets and shoe buttons part of the printed design of the cotton from which they are made?

The frock that suggests the same trick you may not have seen. One model from Vionet of Paris that has come in for very favorable comment in America is of gray crepe georgette, with the bow and girdle printed on the georgette in mauve-pink and black. From the present point of view this trick recommends itself because, while it gives the illusion of a rather large bow sash, it adds not one minim of thickness to the silhouette of the wearer; and since it is the fashion to have the thickness of flapjacks, this seems to be a distinct advantage.

To make a frock out of one of these fabrics printed to simulate a bow sash seems like an easy task—a sort of helpful hint to the home dressmaker—but really it is not anything of the sort.

Quite characteristic of these Vionet printed frocks is a distinct flare at either side—a flare that gives considerable width at the hemline without in any way detracting from the general clinging, straight lines of the frock.

Vionet trims gray crepe frock with printed bow and girdle in pinkish mauve and black.

FASHION FLASHES

The woman who wears glasses or spectacles need no longer carry these aids to vision in the conventional leather or near-leather case give to her by the optician. At the purse and handbag departments of some of the smart shops you may buy very attractive little beaded or brocaded cases for this purpose.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

SOME BREAKFAST DISHES

A well-known, first-rate restaurant that attracts many fastidious breakfast guests by its large variety of "club breakfasts," makes a specialty of what they term "bacon sandwiches." These are made by cutting pointed soft rolls in two lengthwise and then laying in each about two slices of well-broiled bacon, and covering sandwichwise. This makes a delicious breakfast dish at the home breakfast table.

It seems odd that we so seldom have croquettes for breakfast. Food fried in deep fat, you know, is much more wholesome than that fried on a frying pan or griddle. Freshly made rice croquettes make a delicious substitute for the usual cereal porridge, and almost any sort of left-over cereal may be cooked in this way. The best plan is to add an egg yolk or two while the porridge is still warm. Mix thoroughly and then set the porridge away in the refrigerator until the next day. Then form into balls, roll in crumbs and the egg white, mixed with a teaspoon of cold water if necessary. Fry in hot fat, drain on brown paper, and serve piping hot.

Cheese may not seem like an appropriate breakfast dish, yet many persons find it quite appetising at the first meal of the day. A cheese omelet or a dish of rice or spaghetti cooked with cheese sauce is an interesting dish by way of variety. Raw fresh tomatoes are liked by many persons for breakfast, and make an interesting alternative from fruit at the first meal of the day. French folk frequently eat radishes for breakfast, and they, too provide the necessary bit of freshness to the meal in an inexpensive form. Crisp radishes and bread and butter with coffee or other chosen beverage make a breakfast that is appetising and satisfying.

Plague In Foochow Is Predicted; Will Organise Combat

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Foochow, July 3.—Although the flood has subsided, diseases have set in and the police has been instructed to organise anti-plague hospitals by the Governor. Several had been started since July 1.

Lu Hsin-pang, contending that his territory had suffered unprecedented loss through the flood, telegraphed for aid. In reply, the governor states that he is sending a special delegate to investigate the conditions and devise means for relief work.

Wedding

YAUKEY-SYDENSTRICKER

Miss Grace Sydenstricker, daughter of the Rev. Dr. A. Sydenstricker, Nanking, became the bride of the Rev. Jesse Baer Yaukey, Yochow, Hunan on June 30, in Nanking. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W. Paxton, Chiukiang, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. Lossing Buck, in the presence of forty guests.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by Miss Maud Carson, Soochow, and Mr. J. Lossing Buck, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. The flower girls were the little Misses Louise Young, Soochow, and Ruth and Miriam Hamilton, Nanking.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held, at the close of which the newly-wedded couple left for Mokanshan, where they will spend their honeymoon. Rev. and Mrs. Yaukey will be at home after September first at Yochow City, Hunan, where the bridegroom is in charge of the city work in the evangelistic department of the mission of the Reformed Church in the United States.

The bride looked charming in a gown of white crepe de chine, and her veil, which fell to the hem of her gown, was arranged coronet fashion and caught with orange blossoms. She carried pale pink carnations as did her maid of honor, who wore green organdie. The flower girls also wore organdie in pall colors.

The Buck home was attractively decorated with flowers and feathery bamboo and the ceremony was performed beneath the soft glow of candles in bamboo candlesticks that formed a half circle of light round a bower of bamboo, banked with hydrangeas, gladiolas and black-eyed Susans.

Prior to the ceremony the following program was rendered in the music room, by Miss Mabel Claire Currie, Soochow, pianist and soloist assisted by Mr. Leslie Hancock, violinist:

Characteristique ..... Sinding
Reverie ..... Schutt
Crescendo ..... Per Lasson
Vocal Solo ..... O Perfect Love
Canzone Amorosa ..... Nevin
Song ..... MacDowell
At Sunset ..... MacDowell

The bride, who was born in China, is a graduate of Maryville College, and since 1922 has been principal of the George Smith Girls' School, Soochow. The bridegroom, who came to China in 1922, is a graduate of Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa. and of Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, O. His home is in Waynesboro, Pa. U.S.A.

Ma Chi Dissatisfied With Shen Heng-yin

Peking Asks For Postponement in Date Of Sino-Russian Parley

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Peking, July 3.—General Ma Chi has wired to Peking and Loyang to say that while Shen Hung-yin claims that he is refraining from attacking Kweichow he has despatched the division under Teng Yu-wen to assault Chuanchow. He asks for permission to lead his forces from Hengchow to Chuanchow and for reinforcements from the government.

According to a telegram from General Chen Hsia-ling, Liu Cheng-hsun is trying to seize the revenue of Luting and Hanyuan. Although he has reached an agreement with Liu as to boundary lines, he will be compelled to fight Liu if the latter repeats his offense.

The Bureau for Sino-Russian Affairs has written to M. L. Karakhan to say that preparation for the negotiations is underway in accordance with the stipulations of the draft pact, but on account of unfinished business, a postponement of half month for the actual parley would be necessary. Karakhan has wired Moscow for instructions.

SAYS THEY SAVED HER BABY'S LIFE

So She Would Not Be Without BABY'S OWN TABLETS

One of the most fatal ailments of childhood is Cholera Infantum. It comes on suddenly, especially during the hot months, and unless prompt treatment is given the little one may soon be beyond aid.

Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine for warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus safeguarding infants and little children against all the dreaded hot-weather complaints. Concerning them Mrs. Fred. Rose, of South Bay, Ontario, says:—"I feel Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our little one when she had cholera infantum and I would not be without them."

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, also reduce fever, relieve colic and indigestion, check diarrhoea, make teething easy, expel worms, quickly bring soothing, health-giving sleep, yet are guaranteed absolutely free from opiates or narcotics and perfectly safe for even the youngest infant. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

M. Auriol Heads Finance Committee

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 2.—The Chamber Committee yesterday elected M. Auriol President of the Finance Committee, M. Maginot, President of the Army Committee, M. Franklin Bouillon President of the Foreign Affairs Committee, M. Levasseur President of the Commerce Committee, M. Diagne President of the Colonies Committee and M. Violette Reporter-General of the Finance Committee. After the elections, M. Auriol declared: "We desire clarity in Budget proposals. Prosperity will be born again when the inseparable problems of the reparations due to France, inter-Allied debts and the economic reconstruction of Europe are solved."

Wants Hsian To Control Concession

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 30.—It is semi-officially reported that Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan, Inspector-General of Hupeh and Hunan, has telegraphed to the Government his recommendation of Mr. Hsian Chang as Commissioner to control the former Russian concession at Hankow. Mr. Hsian Chang is a Russian language expert and has been in charge of the concession for the past four years.

DOGS

Dog owners who have not yet taken out licences for the current year are requested to make application at the Revenue Office, accompanied by the fee of $5 for each dog.

Attention is directed to Condition No. 6 imposed in the licence, as follows:—

"That the dog when in the streets "or other place of public resort be "effectively muzzled, but in such a "manner as will admit of its "breathing and drinking."

Dogs found without muzzles, whether led or at large, within the limits of the Settlement or on outlying roads, will be seized by the Police and detained at the Kennels for a period of one week or longer as circumstances may direct; their owners, when identified, will be prosecuted. Dogs wearing ineffective muzzles will be regarded as unmuzzled.

Enquiries on the subject of lost or strayed dogs should be made at the Gordon Road Police Station (Telephone No. West 348).

By order,
J. M. McKee,
Assistant Secretary.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE ARTICLE

FULL TEXT OF LEAGUE PACT FOR HUNGARY IS RECEIVED

Tells How A Stranded Nation Has Been Helped

INTRICATE JOB

Seven Countries Banded Together For World Harmony

The full text of the agreements drawn up by the League of Nations for the financial reconstruction of Hungary and signed recently has been received by The China Press through the courtesy of Mr. Hsia-chi Feng, a Chinese journalist now in Geneva. Relative to Mr. J. Smith of Boston who was appointed by the League as Commissioner-General for the financial reconstruction of Hungary, Mr. Hsia says:

"Mr. Smith was in Shanghai in 1920 as the legal adviser to the delegation of the New Consortium and we pressmen who were in that town at the time remember him very well. It was a real pleasure to meet Mr. Smith again in Geneva on his way to Budapest to take up his post there, and we had a very interesting conversation about Shanghai."

The loan arranged for Hungary was for 250 million gold crowns, and was required to meet the deficits during two and one-half years, ending June 30, 1926. It is secured by the gross receipts from the customs and the tobacco monopoly, and the net receipts from the salt monopoly and the sugar tax. This transaction has been of great interest to business men throughout the world.

CITE AUSTRIAN SCHEME

Regarding the negotiations for the loan, the report received here points out that in the early part of 1922 it was apparent that the Austrian scheme, arranged by the League, was proving successful and that Hungary's efforts to stabalise her currency without the aid of an external loan were doomed to failure. The possibility of a similar scheme for Hungary began to be tentatively discussed.

On April 22, 1923, the Hungarian government made a formal request to the Reparations Commission to lift the charges on her assets imposed under the treaty of Trianon so as to leave them free as security for an external loan. The Commission decided to give the release only in respect of definite loan schemes which must be previously submitted to it.

Then followed a long series of international meetings and conferences and an intricacy of negotiations. The elaboration of a technical scheme of reconstruction, and even its unanimous acceptance by international experts, was the least part of the task and the most rapidly accomplished.

"Political conditions between the seven countries directly participating in the scheme had to be such as to involve an active and positive desire to restore Hungary and place her finances and economic life on a sound basis. This in turn involved the settlement in a few months of intricate disputes in which all attempts at agreement throughout years of negotiations had failed.

The exact assessment of reparations and other Treaty claims for a period of twenty years, toward which again no substantial progress had been made in four years of study and discussion, was equally necessary. In addition, negotiations with eight countries were needed to secure the postponement of the prior liens of the Relief Bonds. And, lastly, the scheme had to be worked out into the intricate detail of a budget and translated into the form of Hungarian legislation. For negotiations so important in their results, so intricate in their character, so involved with the separate policies and interests of so many countries, a period of six months was not excessive.

VALUABLE RESULT

It is indeed one of the most valuable results—though an incidental one—of the reconstruction scheme that it has afforded an opportunity, an impetus and a limit of time for the settlement of many questions which had for years been troubling the relations of Hungary with other countries.

In the forefront, therefore, was the political position of Hungary and her neighbors—the keynote not only to this problem but to the peace, stability, and ordered economic development of an important and central part of Europe. Not only have the negotiations already substantially improved this position, but the scheme itself affords safeguards for the future. The political protocol was signed by Great Britain, France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croatians and Slovens and Hungary.

COMMITTEE HEAD SAYS NEW TAX LAW STOPS EVASIONS

Chairman Green Defends Publicity, Gift And Estate Levies

Washington, June 8.—Without naming President Coolidge, Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee, who was prominent in framing the recent tax revision bill, issued a statement today replying to the President's criticisms of the estate taxes and the publicity of tax returns.

The President scored the estate taxes vigorously in his statement on the bill, saying they would work great hardships. He also criticised plans for publication of the amount paid by taxpayers, saying that these figures would be put on record in post offices throughout the land.

Mr. Green, however, asserts the estate taxes are scientific, and insists that they will help the States to collect their own estate taxes. He denies that the amounts of taxes paid must be put up in post offices.

One paragraph in the Green statement reads:

"There has been much talk to the effect that the surtaxes ought to be reduced to a low figure because the wealthy would not pay the high rates. I think they might well have been reduced to a maximum of 35 percent, but I do not believe in the doctrine that because the rich have been to a certain extent evading these taxes the rates should be lowered.

"Such a doctrine is not sound economically and puts a premium on law breaking.

"What we ought to do is to close all the avenues of escape that experience has shown to exist and put the honest man on an equality with the tax dodger."

SAYS CUT IS $480,000,000

Adding to the $361,000,000 tax reduction effected by the bill in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, the 25 percent reduction on present taxes, of which he is the author, Mr. Green says the bill cuts off $480,000,000 in taxes in the eighteen months starting with January 1, 1924. He summits a table to show a reduction of $136,000,000 in excise or nuisance taxes.

That part of Mr. Green's statement which applies to the President's analysis of the bill follows:

"The new law has been criticised in several respects, and particularly with reference to the provision for publicity of returns and the estate and gift taxes. It has been said that it provided for the posting of the returns in the various Post Offices, but this is not correct.

"It merely provides that the name and address of the taxpayer, together with the statement of amount of tax paid, shall be subject to examination in the collector's office and such other places as the Commissioner may direct.

"This provision may go too far but such a stalwart Republican as Benjamin Harrison made a strong speech in favor of full publicity of tax returns. I fail to see where this provision will do any harm, and I have no doubt it will result in the Government receiving a greater amount of taxes.

"The estate taxes have been somewhat increased in the upper brackets, which are carried to 40 percent on estates above $10,000,000 the same as in England, except that that rate is applied to smaller estates.

"The taxes on estates of decedents, considering the very large exemption of $50,000, are the least objectionable of any of the taxes which the Federal Government levies. The leading economists have for a long time recognised that these taxes do not tend in any way to restrict initiative or ambition, and it is certain that they do not affect business.

DELAY OF SIX YEARS PERMITTED

"The persons who would otherwise receive the funds have done nothing to earn them, and, in view of these facts, such prominent statesmen as Roosevelt and great business men like Carnegie have recommended that our estate taxes be increased. If we paid as much as is paid in England in proportion to the wealth of the country the Government would collect five times as much as it does now. Six years are allowed for the payment of the estate tax in order that it may not be necessary to sacrifice any property.

"In the new act we have at last got the estate taxes on a scientific basis. For a long time it has been urged that these taxes interfered with the States getting revenue from the same source, but the new law carries a provision that all States taxes on estates are to be deducted from the amount payable to the Federal Government up to 25 percent of the amount of the Federal taxes.

"As a result, no matter in what State the citizen may reside his estate will pay the same tax, and the States, by levying inheritance taxes, can add to their own revenues without increasing the taxation upon the estates.

"No State will hereafter be able to offer a premium to those who wish to escape taxation by moving out of a State which imposes an estate tax into one that does not. Considering the provisions of the bill, it is a very singular feature of some of the criticisms that have been made that it is asserted that the State taxes of this nature are added to Federal taxes, when the fact is they are deducted.

"The real fact is that the new law will aid the States in obtaining revenues from inheritances.

"It is estimated that the new estate tax will bring in annually about $10,000,000 above the amount now received under the present law—an insignificant amount compared to the total value of the estates against which they will be levied.

GIFT LEVY AIMED AT TAX DODGERS

"Recent statistics show that the number of large estates in this country is increasing, and the increase is great where the total amount held by single families is concerned. The value of these estates will continue to increase notwithstanding the provisions of the new law.

"The gift tax is a corollary of the estate tax. Much has been said with reference to the loss to the Government in revenue by reason of the existence of tax-exempt securities.

"A large amount is so lost, but those who have had occasion to study the situation have ascertained that the falling off in the number of large incomes reported is not due nearly so much to the ownership of tax-exempt securities as it is to the division of great estates, made for the purpose not only of evading the surtaxes, but of lessening the amount of tax which would be paid at death.

"It is a notorious fact that nominal gifts in enormous amounts are made for the purpose of evading taxes."

Mr. Green takes the position that the bill is not perfect, for no law "ever was or will be." But he adds:

"It is vastly superior to the present law and superior to any other plan that was presented."

"The only provision in the bill to which I object," continues Mr. Green, "is that with reference to the Board of Tax Appeals, which came out of the conference badly mangled, I do not believe that the Board will be able to function properly or successfully, but if so, we can amend these provisions at the next session."

Fall In Exchanges Is Due To Politics

Sterling's Weakness Is Partly Result Of Dollar Controversy, Says Rome

Rome, June 8.—The view of the Italian market regarding last week's general decline in the European exchanges is that, although the seasonal demand for foreign remittances to cover purchases of raw materials may partially have accounted for the weakness, the uncertainty of the French and German political situation has been the chief determining factor. Naturally, this would be the most operative in the "reparations currencies," whose fluctuations, however, are also felt in the Italian lira.

It was also pointed out on last week's Italian market that the fall in sterling had coincided with the recommendation of the Federal Reserve Board's Advisory Council that the new German bank note issues should be on the dollar instead of the sterling basis. This attitude was taken here to be a revival of the struggle between British and American financiers for monetary supremacy of the world, and it again brought up the question of the return to the gold standard. With the huge surplus of gold in the United States, it is felt that the American market would wish first to use gold exports in an endeavor to remedy Germany's financial difficulties, the other European States being considered afterward.

There is also believed to be some apprehension in France that if marks are made convertible into gold at a premium over other currencies, it may operate to the disadvantage of the French currency. The Italian view is that both the English and the French appear to forget the benefits which all nations would necessarily draw from a healthier state of German finances. This market considers the French and English misgivings exaggerated, and attaches great importance to the American suggestion of an international monetary conference, even though that proposal is premature as long as several economic questions of first-rate importance remain unsolved.

Independence Day 1924

THERE are only four really national holidays observed in all of the States, Territories and Possessions of the United States. These are New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, Independence Day and Christmas Day. There are a number of other holidays observed by the American people quite generally, but of the 52 local or public holidays listed in the last edition of the World Almanac, only the four listed above are observed in every piece of territory covered by the American flag.

Today, July 4, 1924, we are concerned with Independence Day.

We are concerned with Independence Day because exactly 148 years ago the American Continental Congress passed unanimously a Declaration of Independence which contained the signatures of 54 resolute men who believed in the doctrine of "self-determination." Of the 54 men who signed the Declaration, 46 were native born American colonists, two were native born Englishmen, one a Welshman, three Irishmen and two Scotsmen. This Declaration started out:

"When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organising its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. . . . . "

Then, after enumerating the causes in great detail for the momentous step, the Declaration closed with this paragraph:

"We therefore, the representatives of the United States of America in General Congress, assembled, appealing to the supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name and by the authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly Publish and Declare, that these United Colonies are, and of Right to be Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor."

This Declaration, while making the American colonies politically free from Great Britain, did not make them free in many other important particulars. They spoke the English language, they used English law, they got their inspiration from English literature, they got most of their political ideas and institutions from Britain, and they were not economically self-sufficient, and really did not become financially free from Europe until quite recent years. America's recognition of her Anglo-Saxon birthright was quite recently indicated most emphatically in the new Immigration Law which practically limits further immigration into America to the Southern European or so-called "Nordic race."

Mr. Lloyd George once said in a public speech that George Washington was the greatest Englishman that ever lived for the reason that he taught Great Britain how to govern colonies properly. The Declaration of Independence contains the sentence, "The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries, and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states." That the lesson learned in the New World was taken to heart, history proves, and today we have the British Commonwealth of Self-Governing Dominions, all of which are as free (even free from a Volsteadian Standpoint) as is the present United States of America. And today we find the United States of America in co-operation with the British Commonwealth of Self-Governing Dominions—in co-operation in Asia and in co-operation in Europe—to the ultimate end of general world betterment. A co-operation not based upon force, but a co-operation a thousand times stronger based upon common interests and mutual understandings.

The present celebration of the Glorious Fourth is of greater significance than usual because it falls within the year of the National Election—of greater significance because it apparently marks a definite turning point in American foreign policy in respect to international cooperation. Both of the great political parties in the United States, the Republicans and the Democrats, have now adopted their political programs for the coming election and although they differ as to method, both are pledged to cooperation in the improvement of conditions in Europe. America went into the World War for an Ideal—then she pulled out—and now she is going back. Perhaps it was better that she pulled out, for the intervening years have served to bring common sense into the councils of nations, common sense on both sides of the Atlantic to the end that future cooperation may be of better and more lasting effect.

The American communities in China are today celebrating Independence Day along with their brothers at home, and to these celebrations they have invited other foreign nationals residing in these parts as well as the citizens of China, on whose land we all reside. The celebration of the American Independence Day is of peculiar significance to China because the Chinese people have willed a Republic modelled largely upon the American example. The American Declaration of 1776 did not make America a republic except in name only. It required many long years and hard struggles to perfect the ideal and it is not perfect yet. The American political experiment is still an experiment of a people who are trying to learn how to govern themselves, and China may well take heart and serious lesson from the struggles of the American people—and the American people on their part may well bear patiently with China in her struggles for self-government.

The Wanhsien Outrage

IT is to be sincerely hoped that the question put in the British House of Commons by Mr. Lansbury, relative to the action of the commander of H. M. S. Cockchafer, following the murder of Mr. Hawley at Wanhsien, will lead to no developments which might adversely affect the officer in question. The American Commander-in-Chief has thanked the British for the action taken on that occasion, and it is apparent that in the minds of those best fitted to judge, the commander of the Cockchafer acted in a manner best calculated to protect foreign lives in this particular portion of China. What Mr. Lansbury fails to understand is the exact state of affairs in the upper reaches of the Yangtzse the bitter war which is being waged against steam transport, and what is now apparent, the actual plotting to encompass the deaths of foreigners engaged in the business. We know that Capt. Brandt was marked down and eventually was killed, there is information that a like fate was designed for Capt. Pitcairn, who, possibly fortunately for himself, is now home, while there is reason to believe that others may eventually meet with similar dastardly treatment. We have, at the same time, undisputed evidence of a pronounced anti-foreign sentiment, and outrages upon the persons of foreigners resident in China are becoming so frequent as to give rise to the gravest anxiety.

Those whose duty it is to patrol the Yangtzse, know better than even do we the danger which the average foreigner, unprotected, and generally without weapons, faces in carrying out his lawful missions in places in the interior. They know, too, the utter apathy of the Chinese officials, whose duty, even if it be not to afford the necessary protection to foreigners, is at least to administer justice to those guilty of such acts, and to prosecute energetic search until the guilty parties are punished. The commander of the Cockchafer, the first naval vessel on the spot, took the bull by the horns, despite the fact that Mr. Hawley was not British, and proceeded to vindicate the rights of foreigners in this country. Under a threat of bombardment, the leading military officials were obliged to follow Mr. Hawley's body to its grave and to execute two of the ringleaders in the attack which ended so fatally. We have no doubt that in a large number of other countries, the action of the commander of the Cockchafer would be highly improper, might even constitute a casus belli, but in China, where things are as they are, it would be the height of foolishness to suggest that anything like a deterrent effect would have been obtained by the ordinary processes of diplomacy. Certainly the enforced administration of some sort of summary justice is more likely to serve as protection to the foreigner than the dilatory discussions of wrong with the pleasant gentlemen in Peking, whose influence along the banks of the Yangtzse is conspicuous by its absence.

It may very well be that the execution of the two junkmen amounted to an act of injustice, that possibly the two who were executed might have had little or nothing to do with the actual murder. That, however, is a matter for the Chinese officials and no concern of any other party. It was they who decided that these two persons had to be executed, they who put in motion the travesty which usually passes for the administration of justice in those parts, and on them must fall the responsibility.

Vis-a-vis the antiforeign Chinese, particularly in such turbulent places as the upper Yangtzse, foreigners must know no nationality. The only possible consideration in such situations must be the fact that the potential victims are foreign and that they are entitled, as of a moral right, to look forward to help from the ships of any foreign navy which may be at hand. To the minds of every right-thinking American or Briton, it would have been a grievous fault if the captain of the Cockchafer had done anything less than he did. It would have been exceedingly offensive to public opinion here, if that commander had neglected to do anything because Mr. Hawley was not of the same nationality. And it is for these reasons that we venture to think the questions of Mr. Lansbury particularly unfortunate. The time has long gone when naval officers should be broken for taking the initiative in dealing with such matters as these, and anything in the nature of a reproof administered to the officer in question for the determined and proper action he took in the matter, would be a positive outrage to foreign feelings at the present time.

The Much Maligned Foreigner

WHEN self-respecting foreigners come across one of their nationals engaged in the brutal pastime of belaboring a ricsha coolie, either with walking sticks or their pedal extremities, their sympathies naturally go out to the under-dog and they make no attempt to conceal their unmitigated contempt for such unseemly conduct on the part of foreigners. They reveal the same justifiable resentment when discourtesy is shown in the trams or other public places towards the Chinese by foreigners who so far forget themselves that they give cause for offence to the very people in whose country they are domiciled as guests. The average run of foreigner in China has outlived the stage where it was considered meet and proper to display such obnoxious notices outside the Public Gardens as "Dogs and Chinese are not allowed," and there has developed among the majority of foreigners in this country a genuine appreciation of the many sterling qualities of the Chinese and real sympathy for the masses for the oppressions endured under the yoke of an effete and unscrupulous officialdom. The torrent of criticism released by the foreign Press in the Treaty ports of China is directed less against the people of China than against their Government and the load of misdeeds which stand to their credit—or discredit. In the final analysis, there can be no question that responsible foreigners are not anti-Chinese, as the rabid section of the vernacular Press sometimes tries to make out, but, on the contrary, pronouncedly pro-Chinese, for it stands to reason that Chinese and foreign interests are indissolubly bound up, and the interests of the one cannot prosper if those of the other are jeopardised, a fact which any responsible foreign or Chinese merchant will readily attest.

There is, then, no question of the feeling of genuine friendliness on the part of the average foreigner towards the average Chinese. It is not a little deplorable, therefore, that insidious attempts are being made by a section of China's militarists and Government officials to cast aspersions on the foreigner, to discredit him in the eyes of the Chinese and to embarrass him generally. The Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce in Peking, for example, is reported to have requested the Ministry for Foreign Affairs to call the attention of the British Minister "to the havoc which Mr. Smallwood, a British subject, is wreaking in connection with the motor car episode in the Legation Quarter in Peking." It is a thousand pities that we are not told wherein the illegality of the Stock Exchange business comes in. In any event, the business in question is being conducted within the limits of the Legation Quarter and consequently the Chinese officials can have little say in the matter. In the circumstances, we cannot escape the suspicion that the fearsome suggestion that Mr. Smallwood is "wreaking havoc" is brought forward solely to agitate the minds of the Chinese and to create the impression that foreigners in the Legation Quarter in the capital are embarking on a commercial freebooting enterprise.

This is not all. According to the Peking Wan Pao, General Feng Yu-hsiang, the so-called "Christian" General, who some time ago won unenviable notoriety in connection with the motor car episode in the Legation Quarter in Peking, in a letter to Dr. Wellington Koo, calls the attention of the Minister for Foreign Affairs to the alleged "frequent abuse of treaty rights by foreigners in China." He says that as the Boxer rising of 1900 was caused by foreign pressure, which brought reaction among the lower classes, the abuse of their rights and privileges under the 1901 Protocol today is likely to stir up reaction from the intellectual class. The General goes on to make the extraordinary statement that " the Diplomatic Body attempted to oppress China" in connection with the Lincheng and Fengtai incidents, by seeking to prohibit armed Chinese soldiers from passing through the Legation Quarter and Chinese aeroplanes from flying over the Legation Quarter at an altitude below 3,000 feet. All these things, affirms the General, constitute a deliberate challenge to the Chinese intellectual. "Since the foreigners are guests in this country," says General Feng, "we, the hosts, must do something to prevent our guests from committing blunders," and he forthwith requests Dr. Koo to devise measures to avoid future troubles.

That last declaration by General Feng is invested with a truly Oriental touch. We were always under the impression that, so far from oppressing China in connection with the Lincheng and Fengtai incidents, the Diplomatic Body has been criticised by their nationals for virtual inertia in these matters. And we cannot refrain from reminding General Feng, when he talks of foreigners being guests in China, that it is a singular way to treat guests by kidnapping inoffensive foreign men and women and children from an express train, beating up foreign station masters while engaged in the execution of their duties, slaying merchants on the Yangtze with semi-official connivance, and committing the hundred and other things which are heaping on this country ignominy and shame. If General Feng would devote his energies more in the direction of suppressing the spirit of lawlessness abroad in the land and less in fostering anti-foreign feeling, he would be rendering a far greater service to his country and at the same time he would justify his title to being a Christian.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

By Mathy

A SCHOOL FOR LIVING

What is needed in the world is some sort of school or asylum or institution or correspondence course to teach people how to live.

More than anything else, they need to know that. Yet states and school systems are telling them everything but that.

Single tax is grand and socialism is alluring, women's rights are needed, dress reform and simplified spelling, food-chewing, prohibition, and criminal laws are all right in their way, but still the "one thing needful" is to know how to live.

That is what's the matter with all of us who go wrong.

Only one kind of education is of first account for a bad boy; it is the kind that educates him to live. Geography and manual training will not cure him of his cussedness, nor will common fractions and United States history help him to be clean, brave, and kind.

Here are the subjects in which a public-school pupil ought to be drilled:

How to control my temper.

How to use my imagination so as to strengthen me instead of making me weak.

How to improve and toughen my will.

How to find pleasure in common things.

How to get joy out of nature.

How to curb my selfishness and develop my altruism.

How to play fair.

How to work so as to make work a pleasure.

How to be a good fellow without being a fool.

How to get stimulation out of simple food and water drink, and not alcohol.

How to control my sex instinct so as to make it conduce to my permanent happiness and not to disease, mental misery, and the wrecking of my career.

How to make friends and keep them.

How to handle enemies and those who wrong or offend me.

How to get along with relatives and all those persons with whom I come in contact.

How to value my own self-esteem more than the praise of others.

When a man commits a crime it is simply because he doesn't understand how to live. Why lock him up in a prison where he is forced down still lower in degradation? Why not have a "how-to-live" school and send him there? and, indeed, why not send him to such a school in the first place, so that he will not become a criminal?

We even arrest a person for attempting to commit suicide, and lead him to jail, when all the trouble with him is that he doesn't know how to live, else he would not have wanted to quit.

Think of all the restless, worried, morbid, unhappy, complaining creatures who simply need a few primary lessons in the art of living.

They think they want money, or notoriety, or to travel, or get divorced, or to change their circumstances; but these things are not what they need; they need to know how to live.

And nobody tells them. Schools don't tell them, doctors don't tell them, judges and prison-keepers don't tell them.

Millions blunder along and make a mess of life because they have studied anything else under the sun except living.

Most people have philosophies of life, ideas on the subject of happiness, and dreams of success that are cheap, absurd, and idiotic.

I have met millionaires, successful business men, learned professors, gifted artists, and able preachers who have not the slightest notion of how to be happy.

Yet I shall not start a school of this kind, for the simple reason that those who most need to learn how to live are the first to resent the suggestion that they need it.

Humility is the only door by which wisdom and greatness and peace can enter, and it is usually barred and bolted by pride and egotism.

Books And So Forth

By Frederic F. Van de Water (F. F. V.)

We Heartily recommend Mikhail Artzybashzeff's "The Savage" (Boni-Liveright) to any one contemplating suicide. It should speed up his plans tremendously. Death, he will discover, has not even the usual 2.75 percent sting when compared with living in or reading about Russia.

Even the most cheerful soul ought to be filled with mortuary thoughts by the time he finishes "The Savage." If we didn't have this department to look after, we who have just completed the book, should probably be busy at present thinking up some form of self-extinction that wouldn't hurt too much. The blessings of a republic are not inconsiderable after all. No one within this nation's broad boundaries is compelled to read the great Russians.

* * *

It is all our own fault. We should have known better. We have enough troubles as it is without going into the Scandinavian or Muscovite after more. We have work and rent and bills and a tendency to fat and a wisdom tooth we really ought to have out; we have a telephone and flat feet and publishers who keep sending us books of verse for review and no time to go fishing. That, apparently, Providence has considered enough retribution for our sinful nature to bear. We read "The Savage" of our own accord.

We can't even plead ignorance of what we were letting ourself in for. We have read various works of the great Russians before and never thought much of any of them. In fact, after reading them, most of our waking hours have been given over to trying not to think of them. This talk about the great dark soul of Russia gives us a severe throbbing pain. We don't believe soul enters into the matter at all. It is the great dark congested livers of Russia that are responsible.

* * *

As we say, as far as "The Savage" is concerned, we have only ourself to blame. Past experience should have warned us off. If it failed, as past experience usually does in our case, the first couple of pages of "The Savage" should have made us turn to something by Ring Lardner instead. In these pages M. Artzybashzeff arranges the scene before which his characters are to play their simple Russian idyll. For this he employs the following properties:

A square covered "with soft decomposed manure"; a ditch filled with "rusty colored fetid water"; some dogs "stray, half-savage"; an orchard "with sickly trees that bore only small sour apples" and a river which was, of course, "miry" and a bridge "warped and rickety." "Often," the author announces with characteristic Muscovite gayety, "funeral processions passed by."

* * *

It seems there were two Russians, Klim and Zakhar. There was also a heroine, Glafira. There was likewise, of course, the conventional idiot, without whose presence none of the great Russian novels can be greatly Russian.

Klim was a nice fellow, except for a love of sadism. Zakhar was his brother. He could take it or leave it alone. He beat up Glafira, too, but only when his brother wasn't using her. Glafira was more to be censored than pitied. She cherished a taste for incest. In time she got so she didn't really mind the beatings-up. Of course, the first year of marriage is always the hardest but, then, Glafira had been brought up to be the perfect Russian wife. Her dear old father, when he had nothing else on his mind, used to while away the long Russian evenings beating up his daughter.

Glafira, as a matter of fact, was the Fireman Jim Flynn of that part of Russia.

* * *

Our inability to throb responsively to much of "The Savage" is due, no doubt, to the fact that our Muscovite inheritance is practically negligible. Only those who have known the vast dreary loneliness of the steppes, the strange, infatuated mysticism of the little steppe fathers can really understand what the great Russians are driving at. We were raised in New Jersey. Our background is deplorable. We had none of the training which must be given in the little Red school-houses of Russia.

When learning to read we never lisped "See the pig. The pig is bloody. He is in pain. Ivan has cut his throat. It is fun to see the blood flow." In grammar we were never called up on to conjugate the verb "murder" in all moods and tenses, and in arithmetic the problem of how Anna, a wife, is to divide herself equally among Boris, Cyril and Paul was never put up to us for settlement.

Consequently, with no Russian inheritance or training and the formation of a fresh resolution to eschew Muscovite literature each time we read another Russian book, it is small wonder that we are unable to enter with great enthusiasm into the daily dozen of appreciate convulsions that Russian art in this country rouses among the critics.

* * *

We are obliged to admit that we discern little that is great in "The Savage" apart from the fact that it is written in Russian. Our regret that we know nothing of this language is profound. If all of us whose yearnings surpass their abilities were proficient in the tongue, we should experience much less difficulty in getting our novels published.

Correspondence

ARMED ROBBERIES, BANDITS AND SO FORTH

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir.—Conditions at Shanghai have reached a very serious stage as with regard to the increased number of robberies and other crimes which have some direct or indirect connections with same. At this rate, Shanghai will soon rival Chicago as a hot-bed of crime, but let us hope that this crime-wave will soon pass away and not become a permanent feature of our "Model Settlement."

It is out of place to specialise activities of outlaws in China and to speak of Shantung, Honan or Kiangpei bandits, because these elements are pretty evenly spread over the whole of the Flowery Republic, whether the territorial administer happens to be a Tuchun, Tuli, Tupan or Tutuh, with or without the prefix "Super," and no province can claim the cake of being the most notorious.

Most of the bandits leaders have undoubtedly the moral sympathy of the common people which makes it so difficult to capture them. They rarely do any injury to other than those who are property owners in the wider sense of the word, and therefore sort of hero-worship of bandit leaders actually exists in China, much as was the case centuries ago in England with Robin Hood.

The object of my letter is not to ask our city elders to stamp out brigandage in China, which has prevailed thousands of years and is, therefore, an impossible task for them to undertake, but to provide us safety within our own little Republic, both as with regard to our lives as well as to out possessions. I will remark that Shanghai has become not what it was originally intended to be—a foreign trading mart exclusively, but is now a haven for refugees, political and otherwise.

It is true much wealth from up-country has been accumulated here through such refugees who have sought protection within our limited territory. Since the revolution, they have flocked in here by the tens of thousands and acquired much of the landed property under the title of "Beneficial Owners," and if it were these people only, there might be less to complain of, although no doubt many of our bona fide residents curse them for being the main cause of the enormous increased rentals; but the thing is that those who have preyed on these interior gentry people, have followed them up to Shanghai and have transplanted their activities in our midst.

These "gentlemen of the road," whose ideas of Shanghai were similar to those which Dick Whittington had of London, are disappointed, and direct their attentions not exclusively to their former prey. If our settlement could revert to the original status of being a trading center only, and not a refuge for wealthy Chinese whose affluence is often very questionable and cannot bear a microscopic test as to origin, then only will it be possible to have the desired safety as apart from the rest of China.

Those with the necessary brains and elected by us in authority might be able to devise means which will lead to this end.

I have the honor to be, Dear Sir, Yours very truly,

H. K.

Shanghai, July 2, 1924.

Stars That Dilate Like Globe Fish Illustrated

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

The most remarkable in many respects of all stars are the so-called "Cepheids," which are suns of gigantic size undergoing very great changes of brightness in average periods of less than a week. The North Pole star is a Cepheid, but its changes are uncommonly slight. The type star of the class is Delta, in the constellation Cepheids.

Astronomers have been much puzzled to account for the behavior of these strange stars, all of which are "giants," many times larger than our sun. At first they thought that the Cepheids were "eclipsing variables," i. e., bright stars with dark companions revolving close around them and producing an eclipse in every revolution.

The spectroscope showed the existence of alternate to and fro motions in the Cepheids, and such motions would occur in a rapidly revolving binary star. But it was soon noticed that the variations of brightness, though keeping step with the changes of motion, did not occur at the right points in the supposed revolution.

Finally Harlow Shapley suggested the remarkable theory, which is now widely adopted as most probably correct, that the Cepheids are "pulsating stars," alternately dilating and contracting to such an extent that their diameters change by millions of miles in a few days!

If this is so, some of these wonderful stars may increase their diameters in a week or less by an amount several times greater than the entire diameter of our sun. Great changes of temperature, of course, accompany these alterations of diameter, which involve rapid variations of density.

The temperature fluctuation carries the stars from one stellar class into another and then back again. Thus Delta Cephei belongs to the class Fo when at its maximum brightness, but a few nights later, when at its minimum, it sinks into class G2, a much cooler type of star. By the way, G is the class to which our sun belongs.

By Shapley's theory, when a Cepheid dilates its surface is upheaved radially, and so, of course, pushed out rapidly toward an observer on the earth or anywhere else in space. The dilation is accompanied by increase of temperature, and the star grows brighter.

In the case of Delta Cephei itself the radius (half diameter) of the star is estimated at 15,000,000 kilometers, or, say, 9,300,000 miles, and the semi-amplitude of the pulsation, or oscillation of diameter, is one nine percent of the radius, causing a movement toward the observer on the earth of 850,000 miles in about 64½ hours, or 11,811 miles per hour, not much less than four miles per second.

Then, after the estimated dilation is reached, the star shrinks with equal rapidity, the motion, like that of the dilation, being betrayed by the shifting of the lines in the spectrum of the star's light—toward the red and when it is contracting and toward the violet end when it is expanding.

It is an interesting fact that the Cepheids, though found as single, scattered stars, like Delta Cephei, and Polaris, are very abundant in the great globular star-clusters. It is also remarkable that in globular clusters the Cepheids that have equal periods of light variations are also equal in mean brightness. If this apparent law of dependance of absolute luminosity upon variation periods holds for all Cepheids, no matter where they are in the sky, then they become standards for estimating star distances.

Something To Think About

By Bruno Lessing

THE PROBLEM OF LIFE

Harry J. Shanley, of Brooklyn, writes as follows:

"I am sitting here thinking while the family is at church[illegible] what it is all about. Not being connected with any particular brand of religion, that is about [illegible] all I can do. Now, what I would like to ask you is, do you think [illegible] that science will eventually prove the savior of mankind [illegible] seeing that idealism has always [illegible] kept it in a state of confusion? [illegible] Hoping that you will excuse me [illegible] for thus infringing on your time [illegible] by writing these few lines, I [illegible] young fellow of a serious trend [illegible] of thought has to find an outlet [illegible] some way for that particular [illegible] process we call thought or thinking."

No, Harry, there are many other things that you can do besides sitting at home wondering what it is all about. The first occupation that we would suggest is to learn a little more about your native language. "Peculiar" comes close to being a crime. You don't want to commit a crime, do you?

The whole structure of your letter shows a woeful lack of knowledge of grammar and rhetoric. Study these things thoroughly and in the course of your studies you will learn many things besides grammar and rhetoric. Because you will have to read how the great writers express their thoughts. And those thoughts will help your thoughts and also help you to express your thoughts.

But as you seem to be unhappy we will do our best to answer that question which, we suspect, you are trying to ask.

The wisest men who ever lived knew no more than you do what the purpose of life is. Many of them studied and thought and worked all their lives to find out the answer to this conundrum and died, no wiser than when they began.

The only intelligent thing to do and—from the standpoint of any religion, past, present or future—the safest thing to do is to lead a clean, honest life, improving your mind and body to the utmost extent of their capacity, doing no injustice to no one and kindness to everyone. This program will keep you so busy that you will have no time to brood over the unknowable. It will also make you happy.

It would be a good thing if you would believe in a religion. It is always a consoling belief. It makes no difference which you select. Those who sincerely believe in the Methodist Church or the Catholic Church or the Baptist Church or the Jewish Church or the Swedenborgian Church are happy alike in their belief.

If you cannot bring yourself to believe in a doctrine which cannot be mathematically proven, do not worry over it. Do your best to cultivate your mind. Maybe some day a belief will come.

The idea of science saving mankind is a curious thought. Many religions are based upon the desire of mankind to be saved. Buddhism, which has millions of followers, is based upon mankind losing all consciousness of ever having existed—complete forgetfulness, so to speak.

The purpose of science is to increase your resources on earth so that you may the better develop your own self. It has nothing whatever to do with saving you from some future fate.

Cheer up a bit, Harry, and settle down to hard work. Don't brood. Read good books and spend more time in the open air.
